

TWS ARTLINE

September 15, 2015

Margaret Roseman President, TWS

Perhaps it is a residual feeling of “back to school” preparation that puts September as the start of a new year for me. The hot and lazy days of summer are replaced with an energized hustle of organization and planning. It is certainly so for TWS activities.

Once again our Fall Aquavision show will be held at the Papermill Gallery at Todmorden Mills. For the last few years we have consciously made an effort to have our show at this location and at generally the same time of year. The purpose is to allow our art patrons to anticipate this event and plan their attendance.

As a departure from our usual show invitation design process, there was an “Invitation to Submit” message sent to TWS members. Each member was invited to send up to two images of their unpublished, never exhibited artwork. This process was open to all members, whether or not they enter or are accepted into the show. Eleanor Lowden, our Vice President and I had the pleasure of jurying the submissions. Thank you to all who participated.

Our Show Chair, Doug Geldart, has planned a “once in a lifetime” holiday to Italy this fall. He will be out of the country leading up to our show jury date and so is unable to oversee preparations. We are pleased to report that one of our past Show Chairs, Valerie Russell, has agreed to step in and supervise this important process. Thank you, Valerie. Enclosed in this publication is the “Call for Entry” for the show. It is also available on the TWS website and at the September meeting. The deadline for submissions is Wednesday, October 7, 2015. Please refer to the Show Rules as found on our website and in this newsletter. The delivery of work, jury of paintings and pick up of unselected work will take place on the same day, Tuesday, October 13, 2015. Please mark your calendar and show your support for fellow TWS members by attending the artists’ reception on Sunday, October 18 between 1:30 and 4 pm.

Over the past 12 months we celebrated our 30th anniversary as an art group. We received congratulatory certificates from the Mayor of Toronto, the Premier of Ontario as well as the Prime Minister of Canada. Quite an accomplishment! .

Margaret Roseman
President TWS

We have booked the main dining room at the Thornhill Golf and Country Club at 7994 Yonge Street, Thornhill, and invite all members to a Sunday buffet luncheon on October 4, 2015. TWS will be generously subsidizing a major part of the cost of this event. Please see the attached “Invitation” for details and registration deadline. Come and raise a glass of wine with fellow members to toast our next 30 years!

The guest artist at our August meeting was Lillian Asquith, a long time member who has freely given of her time and talent as an active volunteer. Lillian has been our Treasurer for close to 13 years. Her attention to detail and dedication to TWS is legendary! Not one to stand still in every sense of the word, Lillian has moved numerous times since she first became a member of TWS. In all previous moves, she was able to be within general driving distance to make our meetings and to fulfill her commitments. This time however, Lillian’s sense of adventure has taken her a little farther afield. Her new home is in Elliot Lake in northern Ontario – little too far to drive down for a meeting! On behalf of all TWS members, I would like to express our gratitude and great appreciation for Lillian’s tireless and devoted service over the years. Knowing Lillian as I do, no doubt she is already busy forming an art group in her new neighbourhood and getting everyone painting!

Let's celebrate the next 30 years!

Jacintha Krish

Jacintha is an active member of the Toronto art community, hosting shows, workshops and events throughout the year and she finds it enormously rewarding to be part of the cultural art mosaic of this vibrant city. October 14, 2015

Natalie Draz

Natalie has been using watercolours in a lithographic-inspired technique, treating them as a drier medium that she grinds into water as she applies it, much like a tusche wash rather than a watercolour. She is a trained printmaker. Natalie takes a final painting, scans it meticulously to create pop up books.

November 11, 2015

Yaohua Yan

Yaohua is a professional watercolour artist, who immigrated to Toronto from Shanghai in 2003. His paintings were selected by CSPWC Open Water multiple times and he won several awards. He is a graduate of the East China Normal University and he taught watercolour painting and graphic design at the university. # TWS Demo Brian Atyeo

Brian Atyeo
June 2015

In June, we had a record number of members attending our meeting. This of course was due to the fact that Brian was our guest artist. We were treated to a mesmerizing and exhilarating demonstration of a northern Ontario landscape. Brian made it seem effortless!

Brian Atyeo Workshop

Brian Atyeo
June 8 to 11

Brian graciously stepped in on short notice to conduct the special TWS workshop held at the Toronto Botanical Centre. Steve Rogers, the workshop artist originally slated for this event had to cancel due to unforeseen health issues.

“Transparent Watercolour” was the first session on June 8 and 9, which focused on the relationship between tonal value and the use of colour. Transparent glazing was a major part of these two days study.

Using acrylic paint on illustration board as a support, the second session on June 10 and 11 was titled “Water Media”. This workshop demonstrated the “construction versus de-construction” in building the final image. Many participants enjoyed using the medium in its transparent or opaque state to work on a more contemporary or abstract painting.

Watercolour: the Fine Art Medium for Everyone

Watercolour, or pigments dispersed by water, has a long history. For most of that history it was a quiet earth toned cousin of other fine arts media, egg tempera, fresco or later very shiny oil paint. Its assets are that it is spread by water and can be used for fine detail in illuminated manuscripts on parchment & paper.

Watercolour came of age with the Industrial Revolution. Pigments tempered in Glycerin placed in flexible tubes expanded the medium's use to new sites. At the same time the chemical industry developed a whole range of vibrant transparent pigments. Steam driven paper mills produced dedicated papers, both as sheets and rolls. Transparent watercolour went from a fairly dull medium for recording basic information to a medium of choice for fine artists everywhere. Gauche or opaque watercolour, the standard medium for illustration for the past century, was only recently surpassed by the digital photograph.

Today transparent watercolour has retained its place as both the most challenging, yet easily accessible, of all the fine art media. New pigments and carrying materials continue to expand transparent watercolour's expressive range. Watercolour drives artists to create everything from immediate intentional expressions of passionate pure colour compositions to tightly controlled exacting illustrations, botanic, landscape or portrait images. New substrates encourage further image explorations. Tiny watercolour miniatures under 2 cm vie with those of many square feet, all possible on paper, wood, plastic or canvas surfaces.

Classic watercolour images remain water soluble. Previously this meant the finished work had to be protected, usually by glass. Recently water resistant archival finishes have come to the market. The finishes both enrich the colours and emphasize their transparent qualities. These finishes free watercolour images to be exhibited mounted with or without protective glass or frame.

Ancient watercolour has arrived in the 21st century with accessibility, creativity and expressive imagery possibilities on hand for everyone..
